Summer internships

The UPRM AMS Student Chapter is proud to announce that during the month of June, eight of its members left Puerto Rico to pursue summer internships in different weather forecasting offices across the country. This endeavor is made possible by the NOAA-UPRM Partnership Program that has been in effect for years in the university and which brings many research opportunities to our members. We wish them the best of luck and hope that they are successful in their research.

Activity: Lending a hand with the Puerto Rico Weather Camp 2012

The 2012 Puerto Rico Weather Camp was held during the week of June 24-30 in Isla Magueyes, Lajas, Puerto Rico. It was a week packed of learning and fun for the 15 eager high school students who attended, and they got to know the UPRM AMS Student Chapter first hand when former member Gian Villamil and member Alexandra Ramirez gave them a brief orientation as to what the chapter is and what we do.
